R-100 SPEEDS TO ENGLAND AT RATE OF 60 MILES HOUR

Favored by Good Take-Off
Huge Dirigible is Over
Atlantic Ocean

VISIT WAS A SUCCESS

of Her Scheduled Departure

ST. HUBERT'S AIRFIELD, Montreal, Aug. 14—(INS)—Gaining speed with the break of dawn. The dirigible R-100 passed the Island of Anticosti on the gulf of St. Lawrence at 5.15 a. m. today, eastern daylight time.

The airship was speeding towards Newfoundland at the rate of 80 miles per hour, keeping in direct touch with the radio control room here. Anticosti Island is approximately 540 miles from here.

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 14—(INS)—Shooting through the night sky at an average hourly speed of more than 60 miles, the British dirigible R-100 passed beyond Fatherpoint, Quebec, at 3.10, eastern daylight time today on her return flight to England.

This places her about 350 miles from Montreal at that time.

ST. HUBERT AIRPORT, Que., Aug. 14—(INS)—Favored by a take-off from the huge mooring mast here so graceful that experienced observers lauded it as the "smoothest in history," the huge British dirigible R-100 today was roaring towards the North Atlantic and England.

At 1 o'clock, eastern daylight time today she reported herself cruising at 48.30 degrees north longitude 68.30 degrees west at a speed averaging in the vicinity of 50 miles an hour.

"Altitude height, 1,100 feet. Air temperature 59 degrees, weather fair, good visibility, no low clouds," the airman's first report concluded.

The majestic airship's visit to Canada terminated at 9.26 p. m. eastern daylight time last night, when she leaped ahead of her scheduled departure by nearly half an hour and with no more than a gentle swing and a faint rattle of mooring clamps slipped into the air and pointed her nose upward.

Gray in the reflected light of motor cars and spotlights, the largest and fastest air queen of the world swung eastward and within eight minutes had disappeared in the dark skies. Three of her six engines roared as she roared to Canada. The thirteen newspapermen and official Canadian Government observers aboard as passengers peered down into the faces of thousands of cheering persons. Below them, momentarily, they spied a huge square canvas on the grass with large gold letters flooded by searchlights:

"R-100—bon voyage—Canada," the sign fairly shouted.

The rooms were gaily decked in blue and white crepe paper streamers in honor of the occasion, and the children's favors also carried out the same idea in color. They were baskets of blue and white colored crepe paper and filled with candy.

A number of games were played, for which the winning competitors received favors.

The guests included: Betty Randall, Billy Campbell, Eugene and Josephine Junod, Ruth Campbell, and Gerald Yorty, of Bristol; Mr. and Mrs. James Shapcott and children, Margaret Shapcott and Harry Shapcott, of Edgington; Mr. and Mrs. Mark Shapcott and children, Sue and Mark Shapcott, Jr., of Horsham.

HAWKS SPANS U. S. IN TWELVE HOURS

Lindbergh Congratulates Flier
For Speedy 2,500-Mile
Dash

FLEW OVER RAIN STORM

VALLEY STREAM, N. Y., Aug. 14.—Behind the name of Captain Frank M. Hawks in aviation's record book today is set down the time of twelve hours, twenty-five minutes, three seconds for an eastward trans-continental flight, the fastest ever flown by man over that distance of 2,500 miles.

It is faster by more than two hours than the time made Easter Sunday by Colonel and Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh. Their record was fourteen hours, forty-five minutes.

Seemingly fresh and his white sports clothes unstained, Captain Hawks set his Travelair monoplane down on Curtiss Field at 6.41.30 p. m. (Philadelphia time), last night after having left Glendale, Cal., at 6.16.27 a. m. A week ago he took from Roscoe Turner the record for the westward transcontinental flight, making it in fourteen hours, fifty minutes and forty-three seconds.

"I don't think it can be done any faster," said Captain Hawks as he landed last night. "Given exceptional weather in the fall, it is just possible my time can be bettered."

A great shout went up from several hundred throats at the field here when the flier appeared overhead, cut his motor and fishtailed down to a landing. As he taxied up to the hangar, his wife and son rushed up and were the first to greet him.

"When do we eat?" he asked.

Later, when the roar of the motor had left his ears somewhat, and he could hear questions, he told of his flight, of a moonlit sky under which he took off in the west, of the dawn that met him over the desert and the sun that gleamed at him first near Flagstaff, Ariz.

"Always it was speed. At Albuquerque, N. M., he made his first refueling, a second at Wichita and a third at Indianapolis. All were quick and efficient. His best time, he said, was made with the aid of wind between Wichita and Indianapolis, when he averaged 250 miles an hour.

Most of the time he flew between 8,000 and 10,000 feet up, he said. "I picked up a thirty-four-mile-an-hour tailwind out of Albuquerque and then we started going to town," he remarked. "At St. Louis I hit the rain, but climbed over it."

Hawks had to "crab" it from the Mississippi east where a tricky crosswind had taken the place of the west-erlies.

"I was getting hungry when I left Indianapolis," he said, "but I figured I'd be in New York in plenty of time for dinner."

Colonel Lindbergh, at his father-in-law's home in Englewood, N. J., last night, said he was delighted at Captain Hawks' record.

"I have just learned of Captain Hawks' remarkable achievement," he said. "He has made a remarkable flight and I think it is fine that he lowered the record."

He said he would congratulate Captain Hawks at "the earliest opportunity."

Captain Hawks said that as soon as his plane has been overhauled he would fly it out to Chicago to compete in the National Air Races there beginning August 22.

The next meeting will take place the second Thursday in September.

GREATEST CELEBRATION IN HISTORY WILL DO HONOR TO GEORGE WASHINGTON; WILL COVER GREAT TERRITORY, WITH CAPITAL AS CENTER

Senator Fess Tells That Task is to Make People of the Nation Understand What A Tremendous Thing the Washington Bicentennial is Going to Be

This is the second of a number of articles by Donald A. Craig, staff writer published serially in the Washington Star, and reprinted by permission.

"The greatest celebration thus far known in history—the most ambitious celebration ever undertaken in honor of an individual."

When Senator Simeon D. Fess of Ohio—former educator and college president, with a reputation for speaking conservatively—uses language such as this, it is perhaps excusable if ordinary folks get a bit excited.

The language just quoted sums up the way Senator Fess envisions the celebration, or, more properly, the series of celebrations that are being planned under the auspices of the Federal Government to occur throughout the year 1932 in observance of the two-hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington.

Senator Fess is the active head of the George Washington Bicentennial Commission, whose ex-officio chairman is President Hoover. Senator Fess holds the official titles of vice-chairman of the commission and chairman of the executive committee.

Members of the commission, which includes prominent Federal officials and men and women widely known in private life, with many of whom a representative of the Star has talked, realize that celebrations of various kinds are "old stories" to Washington City, which has been witnessing events of national and international importance since the Government first moved there in 1800.

But they are convinced that this 1932 affair is going to be something entirely different from all the others. Besides, while the principal national programs are to occur here, this city will be the point from which the series of celebrations will radiate to every part of this country and many foreign countries.

It is to cover more territory—with Washington as its center—than any former celebration. It is to last longer. It is to be on a grander scale. It is to bring more visitors to Washington during the period of 10 months in which the official celebrations will be held. It will arouse more deep and lasting sentiment—practical and, especially, spiritual—than anything of the kind that has gone before it here or elsewhere during the world's history. Those are some of the forecasts.

"It is right," said Senator Fess, discussing the matter informally with the Star representative a day or two ago, "that there should be such an observance of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of George Washington, whose life and achievements have meant so much to the people of the whole world. Our task is now to make the people of this Nation understand what a tremendous thing this Washington bicentennial is going to be. It will be something to remember and look back upon so long as any person shall live to remember it."

Here will be held, on all holidays

Radio will carry what the President says in his public addresses to every part of the country and will permit the Washington programs to become literally a part of the programs to take place simultaneously in every State and Territory of this country, and probably in foreign lands, where the name of Washington is revered almost as much as it is here.

The work of planning the actual, concrete events of the numerous 1932 celebrations has begun. Since the Star published an article a few weeks ago, pointing out that the bicentennial commission had been in existence (Continued on Page 6)

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY TOWNS

James West, Jr., 14, Milford Square, Run Down and Killed by Auto

OTHER NEWS ITEMS

Run down by an automobile as he was riding a bicycle along the highway, James West, Jr., a fourteen-year-old boy, met his death, near Quakertown, yesterday.

He died on the way to the Quakertown Community Hospital, having suffered a fractured skull and internal injuries in the accident.

The driver of the car, Marvin Reinhart, of Corning, is being held pending an investigation by Dr. John J. Sweeney, Bucks county coroner.

The boy, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James West, Sr., of Milford Square, started from home, on his way to Quakertown on the wheel, at about 7.30 o'clock.

He had traveled a short distance along the road, when the automobile, driven by Reinhart, who is an electrician employed in Quakertown, and who was on his way to work, struck him. It is said Reinhart was attempting to pass the boy when the accident took place.

The lad was hurried to the hospital in an unconscious condition, and succumbed on the way. Physicians at the hospital pronounced him dead.

The hotel at California, near Quakertown, was imperiled by a burning shed nearby, Tuesday night, but the prompt response of the Quakertown Fire Company saved the building.

The fire, of unknown origin, started in the shed which is adjacent to the frame hotel. It had gained considerable headway when the firemen arrived, but by the use of chemicals they were able to prevent its spreading to the hotel itself. They were greatly hampered by lack of water.

The loss is estimated at about $700.

A committee appointed by the Richboro Fire Company to build a dam on the Joseph Beavis property, to supply additional water in case of fire, reported this project which has been under construction for several weeks, is now completed. Several business men and residents of the village made cash donations for financing of this work. The committee supervising the work was headed by Joseph Seltzer. In the event of fire in the future, a fire apparatus can be taken to the dam and other engines can be employed to relay hose and force the water to the point where needed.

The firemen have the promise of several farmers of the community to co-operate with the committee in building similar dams on their properties.

John Benner, of Silverdale, died Tuesday night at the home of his son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Benner. He was eighty-one years old.

Mr. Benner had been in failing health for the past year or more and advanced age brought on his death.

He had been a resident of Silverdale for the past four years, and spent the greater part of his life in Trumbauersville, where he followed his trade as a baker.

He is survived by his son, Frank, and two daughters, Mrs. Kate Weidner, of Trumbauersville, and Mrs. Ada Gerhart, of Gilbertsville. There are also several grandchildren and great grandchildren.

The funeral will be held on Sunday.

CRAWLER HUNTING

By "The Stroller"

At this season of the year crawler hunting is one of the pastimes in which both children and adults engage. If you have any doubts just visit Grundy's park some night and especially after a heavy rain.

Dozens of flashlights illuminate the park as the searches go about with bended back and quickly snatching up the crawlers as they come to the surface of the ground.

Crawlers are a form of worm much in demand as bait by the boys of Bristol who fish. They grab the crawlers as they come to the surface after the sun has disappeared in the west.

William Pearson Gives Blood to Aid C. W. Winter

Councilman Clarence W. Winter is reported today as being somewhat improved by the physicians at the Hahnemann Hospital, Philadelphia, where he is a patient.

His condition this morning, appeared to be somewhat stronger and he had a few hours of sleep.

The attending physicians yesterday afternoon resorted to a blood transfusion which appears to have been beneficial.

Nearly 20 volunteered to give blood and four were tested. Two of the four proved to be satisfactory and the one selected was William Pearson, better known as "Buddy" Pearson, Pond street.

Whether or not there will be another transfusion today depends upon conditions.

Expansion Program Due To Tremendous Growth of The Borough

ADD TO THE BUILDINGS

MORRISVILLE, Aug. 14—According to the annual financial report of the Morrisville school district, the cost of operating the public schools here totals nearly $200,000 annually. Because of the tremendous growth in school population and the great necessity for additional school rooms, the cost has been considerably increased during the past few years.

The School Board has now in course of construction a large addition to the Robert Morris School which will include the west wing and the gymnasium. The Osborne mansion is also to be remodeled into a home economics building.

The school district received from the State Department as its annual appropriation $21,186.52. The school taxes received totaled $71,585.90; sale of bonds, etc., $86,607.88; borrowed, $31,350; outside tuition, $2,942.

Some of the principal items of expense included the following: Teachers' and principals' salaries, $52,682.34; commencement, $333.62; attorney's fees, $1,522.73; paid to Retirement Fund, deducted from salaries, $2,080.32; State Association Teachers' Retirement Fund, $1,200; fuel and contingencies, $2,337.11; tax collector, $1,200; salary of secretary, $450; salary of treasurer, $200; salaries of janitors, $4,845.07; debt paid, $50,792.80; interest paid, $5,895.24; capital outlay, $55,459.45; purchase of text books, $1,602.01; supplies, $1,915.16; sundries, $1,273.14; promotion of health, $686.87. The school district employs 40 teachers and has an enrollment of 1,282.

Tree-Sitters Quit Roost When Offered Old Jobs

The tree sitters, William Miles and William Dowd, came down from their perch yesterday afternoon at 2.30 after having held a conference and deciding that now that they could secure work they would give up their tree-sitting inclinations.

Miles and Dowd went up among the birds at 5.30 p. m., on the afternoon of July 22nd. Previous to that time they had sat in the tree at Green Lane and the Highway since one o'clock of the same day. During the first few hours that they were up there was a terrific storm and a third member of the party, Edward Walker, quit.

Miles and Dowd enjoyed their experience of roosting in the tree and claim that they had a fine time while nesting with the sparrows. "We came down because we can get work at the ketchup factory and will resume our employment Monday morning."

The pair were up a total of 529½ hours.

Miles and Dowd thought they had better come down so as to limber up their joints before taking on their positions at the ketchup factory.

CHEERY HOURS ENJOYED AT GOOD TIMES HALL

Happy Smiles and Full Stomachs Greet Visitors to Scout Camp

MAKE IMPROVEMENTS

"Eats," happy smiles, full stomachs and cheery singing greet the visitors as they enter the Good Times Hall. The hall is now famous for the many delicious meals prepared under the capable hands of Chef Wayne Stauffer, of Perkaskie, one of the old Boy Scouts, assisted by John Hershey, of Yardley, as commissary director, and "Bill" Strohm, of Carlisle, as liquid chef.

Each morning a bright roaring fire greets the campers who enjoy a breakfast of fruit, cereal, milk, eggs, bread, jelly and cocoa. On the three days of rain the hall not only provided a dry place to eat but served as an excellent center for the evening campfire. Each week there are hundreds of visitors at Buccoo, and constant admiration has been expressed of the exceptional workmanship, and beauty of "Good Times." The hall has become somewhat of a memorial to the many hours of constant and patient supervision of Chairman Henry Palmer, of Langhorne, and Cyrus Smith, of Hulmeville, of the county camp committee.

This past week saw the completion of another permanent improvement. Upon the completion of the 1400-gallon reservoir two years ago plans were made by Frederick H. Clymer, of Doylestown, camp engineer, for the final completion of a drinking water unit. Scouts Frank Hartzel, Fred Hellberg, William Angeny, Clinton Lash, of Chalfont, "Ed" Satterthwaite, of Doylestown; Howard Holbert, of Warrington, Jimmy Townsend, of Langhorne; chairman of troop committee, Max Koplin, of Newportville; Assistant Scoutmaster Mahlon Detweiler, of Perkaskie, and Scout Executive Livermore, put in the concrete retaining walls for the overflow housing, and cut-out water line. Two feet of dirt was placed over the reservoir to keep the sun off of it. The dirt was loaded by the Scouts into the camp truck from the grading that was done before camp opened at one of the camp sleeping sites.

Seventy-six boys are in camp this week in the Scout, Waterfront, Stockade, Indian Village, and Cub Camps. The Waterfront Camp looks especially snappy with the lookout platform and mast painted battleship grey with a decoration of black. Ship signaling flags are flying from the masthead which adds an additional touch to the camp layout. Future plans at the waterfront call for the building of a skipper's cabin, providing an office for the department, and sleeping accommodations with an upper deck for the waterfront director to view the swimmers. Painting of the mast and its fixtures was done by Mahlon Detweiler, of Perkaskie, and Max Koplin, of Newportville. Scouts in the Waterfront camp have been grading the site, and painting the stanchions which outline the imaginary ship.

Although it has been warm during the day time, a gentle breeze made camp comfortable all during the hot spell. In the evenings it has been very cool.

"Bill" Lentz, a former Scout from Sellersville is in camp and has been developing plans for the annual camp (Continued on Page 6)

City of New Britain Bars Midget Golf Courses

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Aug. 14—(INS)—Miniature golf courses, "Tom Thumb" courses and all that sort of thing have been banned here. City officials shut down on such projects because the establishments were in sections zoned against business. Such action came when neighbors complained against the crowds attracted by the little affairs.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Young and daughter, Miss Dorothy Young, of Otter street, have been spending a week in Atlantic City, N. J. They returned to their home on Monday.

REV. JENNE DIES; ILL ONLY ONE DAY; BELOVED BY MANY

St. Ann's Rector Had Worked Tirelessly for Advancement of Parish

WAS ONLY 59 YEARS OLD

Completed Church Building,
Built School and Established Sisterhood Here

The Rev. Isadore Jenne, O. S. S. T., rector of St. Ann's Italian Church, here, died last evening at 5.30 o'clock in St. Francis Hospital, Trenton, N. J. Death was due to an obstruction in the stomach.

The Rev. Jenne was stricken Tuesday afternoon at 6 o'clock and was rushed to the hospital where every effort was made to save his life.

His death was a great shock to his parishioners and friends outside of the parish.

Rev. Jenne was well and busy at his work on Tuesday and said mass on Tuesday morning. Previous to that time he had not expressed any ill feeling.

With the passing of Rev. Jenne, Bristol loses one of its best known and most beloved Italian residents. He was an indefatigable worker and had made most excellent progress in the advancement of the work of the parish over which he presided.

Rev. Jenne was a native of Italy and was born of humble parents there in December, 1871. He was born in Pastria, near Rome. He entered college to study for the priesthood when 17 years of age and became a member of the Holy Trinity Order. He came to the United States in 1912 and was assigned to Asbury Park, N. J., where he was stationed for two years. He was then named to Roseland, N. J., and after being stationed there for 18 months was appointed pastor of St. Ann's Church here in December, 1916, by Bishop Prendergast.

Immediately upon taking up the work here, the Rev. Jenne exhibited his ability as an organizer and a tireless worker in the interest of his parish. St. Ann's Church at that time had only the basement of the present edifice to worship in. Father Jenne at once began plans to have the church building completed, and this was done within a very short time.

The energetic priest then turned his attention to establishing a school for Italian children and in 1920 he purchased the property on Jefferson avenue where the school and convent are now located. At first the school consisted of kindergarten and four grades. In 1925 the present school building was erected and eight grades established. The number of pupils now totals 500.

PRICES THAT ARE RIGHT

The question as to what are right prices dates back many centuries. No doubt under the shadow of the pyramids of Egypt the seller and the buyer argued often on whether the price tag told a lie. In different periods men have had different ways of arriving at what they considered right prices. It is held that previous to the latter part of the nineteenth century the moral side of this question was given more consideration than it receives today when prices are regarded perhaps too much an economic question.

We should fare ill, however, if so large an element as the moral element is felt to be, were left out of consideration. The economist may look on our social order as an industrial mechanism, but he will have difficulty in persuading the vast majority of our citizens that there is not a right and wrong even in matters that pertain to price.

Popular opinion is likely to agree with that of an expert who recently defined right prices as "prices which will make goods move." The mere possession of a commodity does not always give the possessor the right to charge whatever he pleases. He may charge all the traffic will bear, but the public has of late taken a somewhat wholesome interest in seeing to it that the traffic isn't made to bear too much. It has been known to do its buying in places where the traffic is made to bear a little less.

As the public becomes more and more exacting in its demands that prices shall be right, it becomes more and more the problem of the seller to convince the buyer of the reasonableness of his prices. As long as we can maintain flexible and competitive markets free from artificial control, it will be increasingly difficult for the seller to push goods at any but the right prices.

WHY ARE FASHIONS?

Man manages to get along with more or less standardized dress, why not women? Madame Paquin, the Paris authority, furnishes the answer from 33 years' experience with the foibles of fashion. "There can never be a set, uniform style for women so long as women wish to be beautiful and men wish to have them so." The great tragedy of a woman's life, she says "often is that she is not good-looking; the fear of not looking well has brought them to me in tears."

Of course, we all know that it did not require a generation of fashion making to discover the psychology of styles, but Madame Paquin has put it into epigrammatic brevity and pontificates with the air of authority. Women, especially, will stress the division of equal responsibility, that while women wish to be beautiful, men wish to have them so. The fashions cannot be blamed on either alone.

Judging from the divorces, it's a wonder that Hymen doesn't fire Cupid.

American juries have demonstrated that the unpardonable sin is a myth.

A verbal agreement with some persons is not worth the words required to make it.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or over increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Chew a Rexall Orderly at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall Drug Store. Charles L. Bowen. (Adv.)

"They mean," replied his dad, "that he doesn't do any leading at all, but merely follows his wife's orders."

BABE RUTH HAS HIT
MANY LONG HOMERS

By Ford Frick
I. N. S. Sports Writer
NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—"I'll break my record sure," remarked Babe Ruth as he watched home run No. 41 go careening into the center field stands at the Stadium. Mr. Ruth wasn't boasting; he didn't make the statement with any air of superiority or any idea of making headlines. It was a simple statement of fact. He felt that way and he said so.

And it is a well known fact that when the Babe predicts he will accomplish a thing, he usually does it. With two months of the season yet to go he needs only 20 home runs to break his record. That's ten homers a month—and ten homers for the Babe is just a breeze.

There's a lot of discussion today as to whether or not that forty-first homer that landed in front of the scoreboard in center field is the longest the Babe ever hit. It's 429 feet from home plate to the fence at the point where the ball went over, and the ball cleared the wall by a good ten feet, which would make the drive some where in the neighborhood of 440 feet. That it's the longest drive he ever hit in the Stadium seems to be an unquestioned fact. But it's not the longest he ever hit, the Babe himself declares.

The longest drive he ever made, the Babe insists, was hit in an exhibition game against The Giants in Tampa, Florida, when the Babe was still a member of the Boston Red Sox. That drive was measured by newspapermen and was officially announced as a 565-foot wallop.

The longest and at the same time the freakiest homer that the Babe remembers hitting in a league game was in Detroit. He left the ball over the right field wall, and it hit squarely in the center of a paved street. It bounced and rolled as straight as a string down the middle of the thoroughfare with a boy giving chase on a bicycle. The kid chased the ball for three blocks before he finally caught up with it. The distance on that one was more than a quarter of a mile, but of course the fact that the ball hit on paving and rolled down the asphalt gave it added distance.

Probably the most dramatic home run the Babe ever carved out was produced in Nashville in 1925. The Babe had been sick with a raging fever for two days and hadn't been in the lineup. But it was advertised that Dazzy Vance would pitch this particular game and speculation was rife as to what Babe would do against Dazzy's fast one.

Babe got up from a sickbed, against the doctors' orders, put on a uniform and reported to play. The first two times up he struck out, but on his third appearance he rifled a ball over the center field wall like a bullet, through the branches of a spreading oak tree across the street and into the living room of a house beyond. He ran the hit out and fell exhausted at the plate. Twelve hours later came the breakdown at Asheville and the illness that for a time threatened his very life. But the Babe had kept faith with his public none the less.

Then there was that game in Chicago a few seasons ago. The Yanks were scheduled to make a quick getaway after the game and the railroad company was holding a train for them. But the game went into extra innings, and Mark Roth, the secretary, became worried. In the eleventh inning he went to the bench to see Miller Huggins.

"What about that train?" he inquired. "Shall I have them hold it?" "Oh, yes, we'll make it in a minute," Hug declared. "We'll end this one up pretty soon."

But they didn't. Mike Cvangros, the Sox pitcher, was in good form that day and the game went on and on and on. Finally in the sixteenth inning Mark came to the bench again.

"They'll only hold that train fifteen more minutes," he announced.

"Better let it go then," Hug replied.

"Looks like we're here all night," Babe happened to overhear the conversation. "Why didn't you tell me you wanted to make a train?" he inquired. "You run back there, Markie, and tell em we're coming. I'll hit one over the fence this time and we can all go home."

And he did it too—smashing the first pitch over the top of the right field bleachers and into the parking space beyond for one of the longest homers of his big league career.

Incidentally, Babe says that the longest ball ever hit in the Stadium was smacked out by himself, but by Lou Gehrig. Lou got hold of a fast one one day and hit the center field screen on the fly—the ball hitting the screen so hard that it bounced back toward the racing outfielder, and Lou was held to a triple.

"That's the hardest hit ball I ever saw since I've been playing baseball," the Babe declared. And he wasn't kidding either. He meant it.

Greatest Celebration In History Will Do Honor
To George Washington

since December, 1924, without having got beyond authorizing three splendid permanent memorials to George Washington—without having adopted any definite plans for the great celebrations that it is proposed to hold under the auspices of the Federal Government in 1932—there has been a great deal of activity.

A force of men and women, occupying a large suite of rooms in the new Washington Building and comprising the nucleus of what will probably be a much larger organization that will be built up during the next two years, has already begun the herculean task of forming contacts with State commissions, taking steps to have backward States organize bicentennial commissions, arranging for cooperation with patriotic, civic, commercial, religious, and every other sort of organization in the country, working out the details of newspaper, radio, movie, and other kinds of publicity; planning programs and doing a thousand and one things necessary to make the celebration a success, all of which must now be crowded into the less than two years that remain before the bicentennial year dawns.

Two high-power directors, have been placed in charge of the bicentennial arrangements of the Federal Government. They are Lieut. Col. U. S. Grant, 3rd, who, among his other multitudinous duties, is director of public buildings and public parks of the National Capital, and Representative Sol Bloom, of New York, who began to learn how to conduct celebrations of various kinds when most of us were children.

While this phase of the subject will be explained more in detail in a later article, it might be advisable at this point to state that the George Washington bicentennial celebration is not to be a world's fair in any sense.

The purpose behind everything the Federal and State commissions are doing, and the two national directors are doing, and propose to do, is to impress upon the minds of the people of this generation, and especially of the next generation—the children who soon will take charge of the world's affairs—the real meaning of devotion to duty, courage in the face of disaster, unselfish statesmanship, constitutional government, and the broad, human viewpoint, as exemplified by George Washington, who built not for himself nor for his own generation even, but for the future.

The character and achievements of George Washington are to be the keynote of the celebration everywhere.

So staggering are the tentative plans which have been sketched in outline to a representative of the Star by members of the commission and the directors that they challenge one's credulity at the same time that they participate in the programs in this effect, the sweeping statements made by Senator Fess at the opening of this article will be doubtless justified.

The members of the United States commission and the associate directors have already received evidences of support from many quarters. Requests have already begun to come in from various groups for permission to city.

It is difficult to talk with those who are in charge of the arrangements for the bicentennial year without becoming imbued with the superlative brand of enthusiasm that is apparent in everything they say about it. It will be the purpose of these articles not to make predictions, but to report as faithfully as possible what has been done, what is being done and what is planned, for the most part permitting those directly in touch with the arrangements to speak for themselves concerning the plans for "this greatest celebration thus far known in history."

show. The show will be as usual, on the last Thursday evening of camp, August 21st, and will start at 7.45, (D. S. T.). The staff and campers are practicing for this annual affair and the prospects at this time point to it being better than last year. Hundreds of visitors from Bucks County and the countryside around camp reserve the date each year so that they will have the opportunity of seeing the campers. Visitors are always welcome, and it has developed into a county caravan.

Nine staff members journeyed last Thursday from Buccoo to the Bristol Rotary Club meeting. Camp songs were sung by an octette which sings each Sunday at the afternoon chapel services. Indian Village Chief Carl Leidy presented an Indian dance. A craftsman exhibit was displayed by crafts director, "Walt" Rutherford, and talks were given by a number of the other directors of the other various departments.
